Day 1

Providenciales.

Day 2

Head to South Caicos, cruising around the north of the islands where the water is deeper. This is the longest passage of the 10 day itinerary, taking you past many islands and cays and beautiful beaches. Spend the night on the southern end of the island between South Caicos and Long Cay. There is a Large Vessel Anchoring Zone (LVAZ) inside Big Cut. Distance: 75 miles

Day 3

Head east to Grand Turk. This is the island capital of Turks and Caicos and is both the historic and financial center. Their main heritage attraction is the National Museum and there are things to do in the cruise ship port. There is an anchoring zone at the southern end of Grand Turk. Distance: 22 miles

Day 4

Take the short passage to the historic and rustic island of Salt Cay. This is where time has stood still and you can still see the preserved sites from when salt raking and the salt trade was the island's biggest economy in the 1800s. There is an anchoring zone on the western side of the cay. Distance: 6.5 miles

Day 5

The next recommended destination stop is the uninhabited island of Big Sand Cay. This small island is a designated bird sanctuary and also great for snorkeling. The anchoring zone is on the western side. Distance: 10 miles

Day 6

Head to French Cay for some of the best snorkeling and spectacular diving in all of Turks and Caicos. It is also a peaceful sanctuary for migratory birds. Uninhabited. Distance: 70 miles

Day 7

Set course for West Caicos where there are many excellent dive sites off the west coast and also several moorings. Note that anchoring is not permitted on the western side, but there are Large Vessel Anchoring Zones (LVAZ) on the east and northeast sides of West Caicos. Uninhabited. Distance: 18 miles

Day 8

Make your way back towards Providenciales to Northwest Point where there is a LVAZ off Sam Bay. Book ahead for dinner reservations at Amanyara Resort. Distance: 14 miles

Day 9

Cruise gently into Grace Bay beach and enjoy the day anchored in the LVAZ. Distance: 12 miles

Day 10
